Practicalities

- Add new functionality as required
- Easy web-based administration
- Upgrade at any time
- Smart, Value Card payment process
- Temporary license transfer in the event of handset error

Smart, web-based purchasing process.

Ascom Licenses can be purchased together with hardware or alternatively, at a later date, defined by user requirements. Our purchasing process is web-based and managed via a simple interface that allows for instant payment using the Ascom Value Card. Our Value Card also allows holders to check the current balance and status of their licenses online. For further details of our Value Card and how to purchase on the web, visit <https://www.ascom-ws.com/licenses>

ASCOM LICENSES – ADD FUNCTIONALITY ON YOUR TERMS

Many factors define the difference between a functioning system and an optimised system. One of the most important is flexibility and how well a system's characteristics allow for future development and growth. At Ascom, we have created a series of licenses designed to ensure that as the demands on it grow and change, your wireless communication solution has the capacity to follow.

OPTIMISE OPERATIONS AND COST EFFICIENCY

Benefits

- Licenses combine future flexibility with operational fluidity
- Enjoy tailor-made individual or group functionality
- Time efficient installation and administration
- A cost effective solution for growing organisations
- Secures and optimises your investment

Enjoy future flexibility through smart licensing

Within any organisation, change is an unavoidable consequence of progress. In turn, this affects communication needs – more specifically, change affects the level and type of functionality users require to carry out their duties effectively. Our licenses address this by giving individuals, departments or other special, customer-defined groups the flexibility to add features tailor made for their responsibilities.

The benefits of licensing are both operational and financial and together with our outstanding Service offer, Ascom Licenses make a major contribution to securing and optimising your investment over its entire lifecycle as well as delivering the quicker response your solution was created to deliver.

The easiest way to manage functionality upgrades

Ascom Licenses enable the upgrade of basic communications functionality to include features such as a personal alarm, advanced messaging capabilities, advanced location finding and many other facilitating features. Users who initially purchase handsets with basic functionality can add and upgrade according to their exact needs – no more, no less – a method of growth that is extremely cost effective.

Group or individual license updates and functionality upgrades are managed from a central administration point and can be carried out over the air. This remote method minimises service interruptions and system administration, saving both time and money. It also means that customer license portfolios can be augmented quickly and smoothly allowing a business or other organisation to react effectively to the latest demands. Using the same administration portal, system managers can also monitor the system's current license status. Furthermore, in the event of a handset developing a fault, licenses can be temporarily transferred until any error is rectified.

Ascom Centralized Management combined with a Software Support Agreement ensures full flexibility in managing and maintaining any functionality.
